There are six seasons in Bangladesh such as summer, rainy season, autumn, late autumn, winter and spring. These seasons come one after another in a regular cycle. Each season has its own beauty and features; it's own colours, sights and sounds.

Summer

This is the first season of the year. It consists of the months of Baishakh and Jaistha. It is warmest season of the year. Fruits of different kinds and sizes such as mangoes, litchis and jackfruit ripen during this season and create a festive mood among the rural people.

Rainy Season

This is the second season of the year. It brings rain which drenches everything during the months of Ashar and Sravon. During this time the sky often remains cloudy. It rains cats and dogs. Due to heavy and continual rains rivers, ponds, canals, fields etc. are full to the brim.

Autumn

This is the third season of the year. It consists Bhadra and Aswin. Sometimes patches of white clouds are seen floating in the sky. It hardly rains. Fish is plentiful during this season. Various aquatic flowers bloom and dance. A gentle breeze passes through the paddy plants that makes small waves.

Late Autumn

This is the fourth season of the year. It consists of Kartik and Agrahayan. It is the harvesting season. Dew falls on grass, leaves and petals. Farmers are busy with the rice harvest.

Winter

This is the fifth season of the year. It comes with fog, mists and cold. It consists of Posh and Magh. The weather becomes dry. It is the season of pleasant weather, of cakes and puddings and marriages and of sports and games.

Spring

This is the best season of the year. It consists Falgoon and Chaitra. It comes with beauty, glory, pomp and splendor. Nature is at its best, leaves and twigs begin to grow on trees and plant flourish. It is the season of flowers, sweet songs of the birds and of pleasant weather.
